3rd Email

Dear Registry,
High Court of Australia

Total 6 Documents Attached

I write further to my first and second correspondence previously transmitted to the Registry and respectfully provide this third update concerning the ongoing collection of telecommunications records relevant to prospective constitutional proceedings presently under preparation.

As the Registry will recall, my first email enclosed a document constituting evidentiary material, provided for the purpose of affording clarity to the Registry and placing the Court on notice of material intended to be filed in connection with the judgment of the High Court in:

In the Matter of an Application by Gerrard Tate for Leave to Issue or File (C12-2026) [2026] HCASJ 26

The document was provided to assist the Registry in understanding the factual and procedural circumstances giving rise to the prospective proceedings and the evidentiary matters presently being assembled.

In my second email, I advised the Registry that I had commenced obtaining historical telecommunications records from several major Australian telecommunications carriers and carriage service providers for evidentiary purposes. Those records are being sought to establish, verify, and corroborate a chronology of communications which may become relevant to future constitutional proceedings and applications before the Court.

I now write to provide a further update and to place before the Registry six additional documents, copies of which accompany this correspondence.

Schedule of Attached Documents

Attachment 1

Optus Records PPS – 0475631008

This document comprises records obtained from Optus Mobile Pty Limited relating to the telecommunications service associated with the nominated mobile number.

The records are relevant to the identification, verification, and preservation of historical communications data and may constitute evidentiary material capable of supporting future applications before the Court.

The production of such records engages obligations arising under, inter alia:

- Telecommunications Act 1997 (Cth);
- Telecommunications (Interception and Access) Act 1979 (Cth);
- Privacy Act 1988 (Cth);
- Competition and Consumer Act 2010 (Cth), including Schedule 2 (Australian Consumer Law);
- Applicable industry standards and regulatory obligations administered by the Australian Communications and Media Authority (ACMA).

Notwithstanding the request process undertaken, concerns remain regarding the completeness and adequacy of the material supplied by Optus, and those matters are presently the subject of regulatory scrutiny.

Attachment 2

Vodafone Call Records – Part 1

This document forms the first component of an extensive production of telecommunications records supplied by Vodafone Hutchison Australia Pty Limited.

The records contain historical call data and associated communications information relevant to the establishment of a detailed evidentiary chronology.

Attachment 3

Vodafone Call Records – Part 2

This document represents a continuation of Vodafone's production and contains further records relevant to the reconstruction of communication patterns and verification of material events.

Attachment 4

Vodafone Call Records – Part 3

This attachment contains additional historical telecommunications data which may become relevant to future constitutional proceedings, evidentiary applications, and matters concerning procedural fairness and administrative decision-making.

Attachment 5

Vodafone Call Records – Part 4

This attachment assists in maintaining continuity and completeness within the evidentiary record presently being assembled.

The information contained therein may be relied upon in support of future applications for production orders, subpoenas, and other ancillary relief.

Attachment 6

Vodafone Call Records – Part 5

This document constitutes a further instalment of Vodafone's responsive production and forms part of the evidentiary foundation presently being compiled.

Taken collectively, Attachments 2 through 6 demonstrate substantial compliance by Vodafone with requests for access to telecommunications information and associated records.

Telecommunications Industry Ombudsman Proceedings

For completeness, I advise the Registry that Vodafone has, to date, complied substantially and cooperatively with the requests made for telecommunications records.

By contrast, both Optus and Telstra have failed to provide complete compliance with requests for records and information sought.

Accordingly, formal complaints have been lodged with, and are presently being investigated by, the Telecommunications Industry Ombudsman (TIO). Those matters remain active and are progressing through the Ombudsman's dispute resolution framework.

The issues under consideration include, but are not limited to:

- Failure to provide complete requested records;
- Delays in responding to lawful information requests;
- Potential deficiencies in document production processes;
- Compliance with telecommunications and privacy obligations;
- Consumer rights arising under Commonwealth legislation and applicable industry standards.

Prospective Constitutional Applications

I anticipate receiving the balance of the outstanding telecommunications records in the near future.

Upon receipt and review of those materials, I intend to finalise the evidentiary record and prepare several constitutional applications for filing before the Court.

Subject to the sufficiency of the evidence obtained, I anticipate seeking constitutional relief, including the issuance of prerogative and constitutional writs pursuant to:

- Section 75(v) of the Constitution;

- Judiciary Act 1903 (Cth);
- The inherent jurisdiction of the High Court of Australia;
- Such further constitutional or statutory remedies as may be necessary and appropriate.

In that context, I anticipate making application for:

- Subpoenas for production of documents;
- Compulsory production orders;
- Ancillary evidentiary orders;
- Such procedural directions as may facilitate the just, efficient, and timely determination of the matters proposed to be brought before the Court.

I provide this correspondence for the purpose of keeping the Registry apprised of the progress of the evidentiary collection process and to ensure that an accurate procedural record exists concerning the steps presently being undertaken.

I thank the Registry for its consideration of this correspondence and will provide further updates as additional records are received and the proposed constitutional proceedings continue to progress.

Sincerely,

Gerrard Tate
